RICH MAN, BORED MAN

Please help me! My boredom level is dangerously high! My subscription to MAD is running out soon and I'm losing it! Our maids keep shoveling all my magazines in my closet and it makes me incredibly pissed! If the pages don't get torn by that, the entire magazine gets thrown out because my mom was "cleaning up." I'm now reduced to movies and my Gameboy for entertainment and I already beat every game on it. I desperately need a subscription and I'm flat broke. Can you help me with one?

Max Justicz, Atlanta, GA

Justicz League — We could barely get through your letter with the tears welling in our eyes. That's a real tough life you've got there, Maxie — it reminds us of something out of a Dickens novel! Your maids cleaned up your MADs for you and now you just have your Gameboy to play with? Next you'll tell us that you're so bored you have to ride your diamond-encrusted bike or listen to your solid-gold iPod! We hope your luck changes and although we can't give you a MAD subscription, you will certainly be in our prayers! —Ed.

ENVELOPE OF THE MONTH

Fans of the MAD Letters Page will be excited to know that defending "Envelope of the Month" champ Jim Hutchings has responded to challenger Matt Handfield's Envelope Of The Month smackdown from issue #466. We think you'll agree that Jim's response is boldly-worded and more than a little baffling. Matt, are you going to take this from a Canadian? C'mon, man, defend your country's honor! One thing's for sure — in this battle, even the winner is a loser! —Ed.

MATT'S INCENDIARY ARTWORK FROM MAD #466

JIM'S "COURAGEOUS" RESPONSE

OF VICE AND MEN PART II

I noticed in the Letters Page of MAD #469 you have a picture of the cover of Vice magazine which you attribute to Al Jaffee. It was, in fact, drawn by two people. One of them being Mr. Jaffee and the other being me. I drew all those critters floating around in Al's brain cloud.

Johnny Ryan, Los Angeles, CA

Rye Bread — This is typical Jaffee! Getting rich off the blood, sweat and tears of those who toil behind the scenes. Well, the jig is up, Jaffee! Your days of grandstanding and strong-arming are over! We're happy to set the record straight and offer our sincerest apologies to fellow MAD artist Johnny Ryan! —Ed.

STEAL WOOL

I have been a huge fan of your rag since I can remember. I continue my subscription despite my mailman's disapproving glances as he drops it in my box. I've enjoyed seeing how it has evolved over the years. In the past few years I've been delighted with the addition of madmumblings@madmag.com. I enjoy the offbeat and sometimes insane bits of wisdom that spews forth from the folks at madmag.com. However, in MAD #468, someone named eligold27 submitted the phrase "It's a well-known fact that the sheep that gives us steel wool have no natural enemies." Perhaps some of your more astute readers have noticed, as I have, that this is not an original musing by eligold27, but a stolen line from a Far Side comic. I'm shocked that someone would stoop so low just to get something printed in your lousy mag...which I still love, by the way. Therefore I invite all MAD readers to rise up against eligold27 and demand justice on the behalf of Mr. Gary Larson. For shame, eligold27, for shame.

Nick Norsten, Hollywood, CA

Nickelback — That is a very serious accusation...and an accurate one. We were dismayed to find that the line is, in fact, stolen from a Far Side cartoon. We were so incensed by this blatant plagiarism, that we got our crack team of internet security specialists to track down the identity of eligold27. And after several hundred man hours, our team got their man! We're saddened and ashamed to report that eligold27 is none other than long-time MAD contributor and career scoundrel, Al Jaffee. We'd like to apologize to long-time MAD non-contributor Gary Larson. And although this doesn't affect him in any way, we'd like to apologize once again to Johnny Ryan. For shame, Al Jaffee, for shame! —Ed.

TAT'S ALL, FOLKS!

I really have to start thinking things through. How about a three-year subscription to line my birdcage with?

John Beuhler, British Columbia, Canada

Beuhler?...Beuhler? — It looks like you're in for a lifetime of long-sleeved shirts, friend! We have one question though — what's with Alfred's eyes? He looks like he hasn't slept in weeks. Congrats on your free one-year subscription. Hopefully the money you save can be put towards the tattoo removal surgery! See you in the O.R.! —Ed.

JOHN'S HORRIBLE, PERMANENT MISTAKE

MAD NIFTY FIFTY CELEBRITY SNAPS

As the winner of Beauty And The Geek, I was accosted by a young orphan boy asking to take a picture with me while I held up a MAD. Having appeared in the magazine with Spike Lee and Survivor's Jonny Fairplay as part of The Ed.'s Nifty Fifty™, I knew what he was up to. And I figured now that I've won $250,000, it was time to do what everyone else with money does — get free stuff. So I rejected his offer, stole the issue he had on him, and decided to take a picture with myself holding a MAD. If not part of the Ed.'s Nifty Fifty™, I'd have to believe that the winner of Beauty And The Geek is at least in the Ed.'s Not-That-Great Ninety Eight™! Growing up on MAD (I owe my sense of humor to the magazine) I recall an article entitled "You're A Winner And A Loser..." and humbly ask you to add me under that rubric — whether the subscription to MAD or winning a show named Beauty And The Geek makes me the loser, I leave up to you (and my high school bullies.)

Josh Herman, Los Angeles, CA

Herminator — Reading your letter brought a tear to our jaded, world-weary eye. On these very Letters Pages, we've watched you grow up (relatively speaking). We think this is a first: a Celebrity Snapper becoming a Celebrity Snappee. By the way, the publication of this letter officially ends your 15 minutes of fame! Enjoy your three-year subscription and we look forward to your inevitable appearance on The Surreal Life! —Ed.

DISHONARABLE MENTION

I have one question. I was wondering if you kept track of how many times people write to you and if there is a record. If there is a record, would you please tell me because I would like to break it. Also, I know you probably will find a way to make fun of my name, and I would just like to wish you good luck!

Zevi Lowenberg, Baltimore, MD

Zevi Nova — Actually, we haven't kept track of how often people write to us. But for the sake of this conversation, let's just say you've broken the record with this letter. Congratulations on your victory — now there is no reason to write to us ever again. —Ed.

P.S. We hope you like how we made fun of your name — we could never have risen to the challenge without your encouragement!!

STAGE BLIGHT

I have a question, in MAD #468 in "Reasons You Should Definitely Skip Summer Concerts," you are making fun of a singer talking about politics who looks and acts a lot like the singer Conor Oberst from the band Bright Eyes. Is that singer him?

Tyler Pittman, Jeromesville, OH

Merry Tyler Moron — You've raised a really sore subject for us. The character you identify as Conor Oberst was actually artist Simon Gane's attempt to draw Kanye West. Suffice to say, Mr. Gane missed the mark and we are still very displeased. Thanks for opening up old wounds! —Ed.

BUT SIRIUS-LY, FOLKS...

Recently on the Howard Stern radio show, Howard and guest Louis C.K.(of the HBO series Lucky Louie) had nothing better to talk about than MAD! We're willing to bet that this is when Sirius subscribers switched over to Nordic Rox (channel 18 for all you Ace Of Base fans)! Here's how the conversation went:

HOWARD STERN COVER ART (MAD #335)

My influence was MAD Magazine.

Right...Oh, I loved MAD Magazine when I was little.

And the first time MAD Magazine put me on the cover, I was beside myself.

Oh god! That must've been amazing!

It was an amazing feeling and I remember I think they had my head coming out of a toilet bowl with a plunger.

I was like wow, I mean that's too much — Ya know, I gotta — I gotta blow up that cover because I really should look at that.

That's a great moment.

Yeah. I savored that.

Don't forget to send in your vote for...

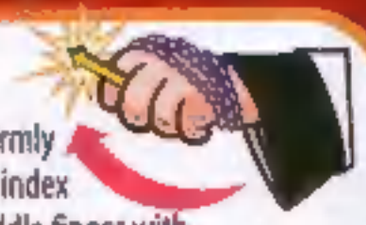
SELF-DEFENSE FOR ALTAR BOYS

CRUCIFIX JAB

Self defense experts know that a common door or car key makes an excellent weapon when held firmly between the fingers and jabbed into someone's eye. But few people realize that a miniature crucifix, such as the kind found on rosary beads, are equally effective.

Step 1
Wrap rosary tightly around open palm.

Step 2
Hold crucifix firmly between your index finger and middle finger with the bottom (base) pointed straight out.



Step 3
Clench fist and punch pedophile priest directly in eye. Repeat as necessary.

VOTIVE CANDLE WAX TOSS

Votives are commonly found in cathedrals and rectories. They are a convenient source of hot wax, which, when thrown accurately, can severely stun and/or scald an advancing debauched man of the cloth.

Step 1
Reach for lighted votive and grasp lightly between fingertips and thumb.

Step 2
With a quick and precise flick of the wrist, toss wax from candle wick into molesting monsignor's face.

Step 3
Run away.

INCENSE HOLDER TWIRL

In a pinch, a makeshift mace can be fashioned out of a traditional incense burner. By swinging the incense burner directly into a predatory pastor's forehead you can knock him unconscious long enough to call the police and maybe even the local news.

Step 1
Firmly grip chain attached to incense burner.

Step 2
With a brisk rotation of the arm, twirl incense burner in the air at rapid speed.

Step 3
Fling at pervo prelate's head.

Note: Incense burners without a chain may be thrown directly at a corrupt cardinal's head. In many cases, this is equally effective.

*These self-defense techniques are only to be used on sexually aggressive clergymen. Most priests are really swell guys. (This disclaimer presented as a tip o' the hat to Catholic League president William Donahue.)

The Cover We Didn't Use

MEL GIBSON'S APOLOGY (FIRST DRAFT)

On July 28th, I embarrassed my family, my agency, my co-stars, my gaffers — and, most important of all, I embarrassed myself. My struggle with alcohol is reminiscent of Christ's Passion and struggle at Calvary — although His persecutors didn't have sophisticated radar equipment and breathalyzers. Also, He didn't have His mugshot plastered all over the tabloids the next day — so in many ways, He had it easier. Anyhow, I have entered rehab, and with the help of God (the New Testament one) I hope to become sober for good.

I also wish to apologize to the Jewish community for my inexcusable remarks. I do not really believe that Jews are responsible for all the wars in the world. For instance, how many Jews live in Darfur? I especially apologize to all the powerful producers, directors, critics, and other Jewish movers-and-shakers who pretty much run Hollywood. I am not anti-Semitic, and all forms of bigotry run against my bizarre splinter version of Catholicism. As my father always told me…well, maybe it's not such a good idea to go into that right now.

As for the "sugart*ts" comment, that was misinterpreted. I was merely paraphrasing Song of Solomon 7:6-8, which reads, "How pleasant art thou, O love, for delights! Thy breasts shall be as clusters of the vine." It was meant to inspire, not to demean. At least that's what I sort of remember.

In closing, I hope I will be forgiven for my latest round of deplorable words and actions. I also hope that I will once again be known for having a nice butt, instead of being a big ass. But above all, I hope that this whole fiasco will be forgotten by the time Apocalypto comes out this fall.

Sincerely,

Mel Gibson

P.S. An Aramaic translation of this apology is now available online.

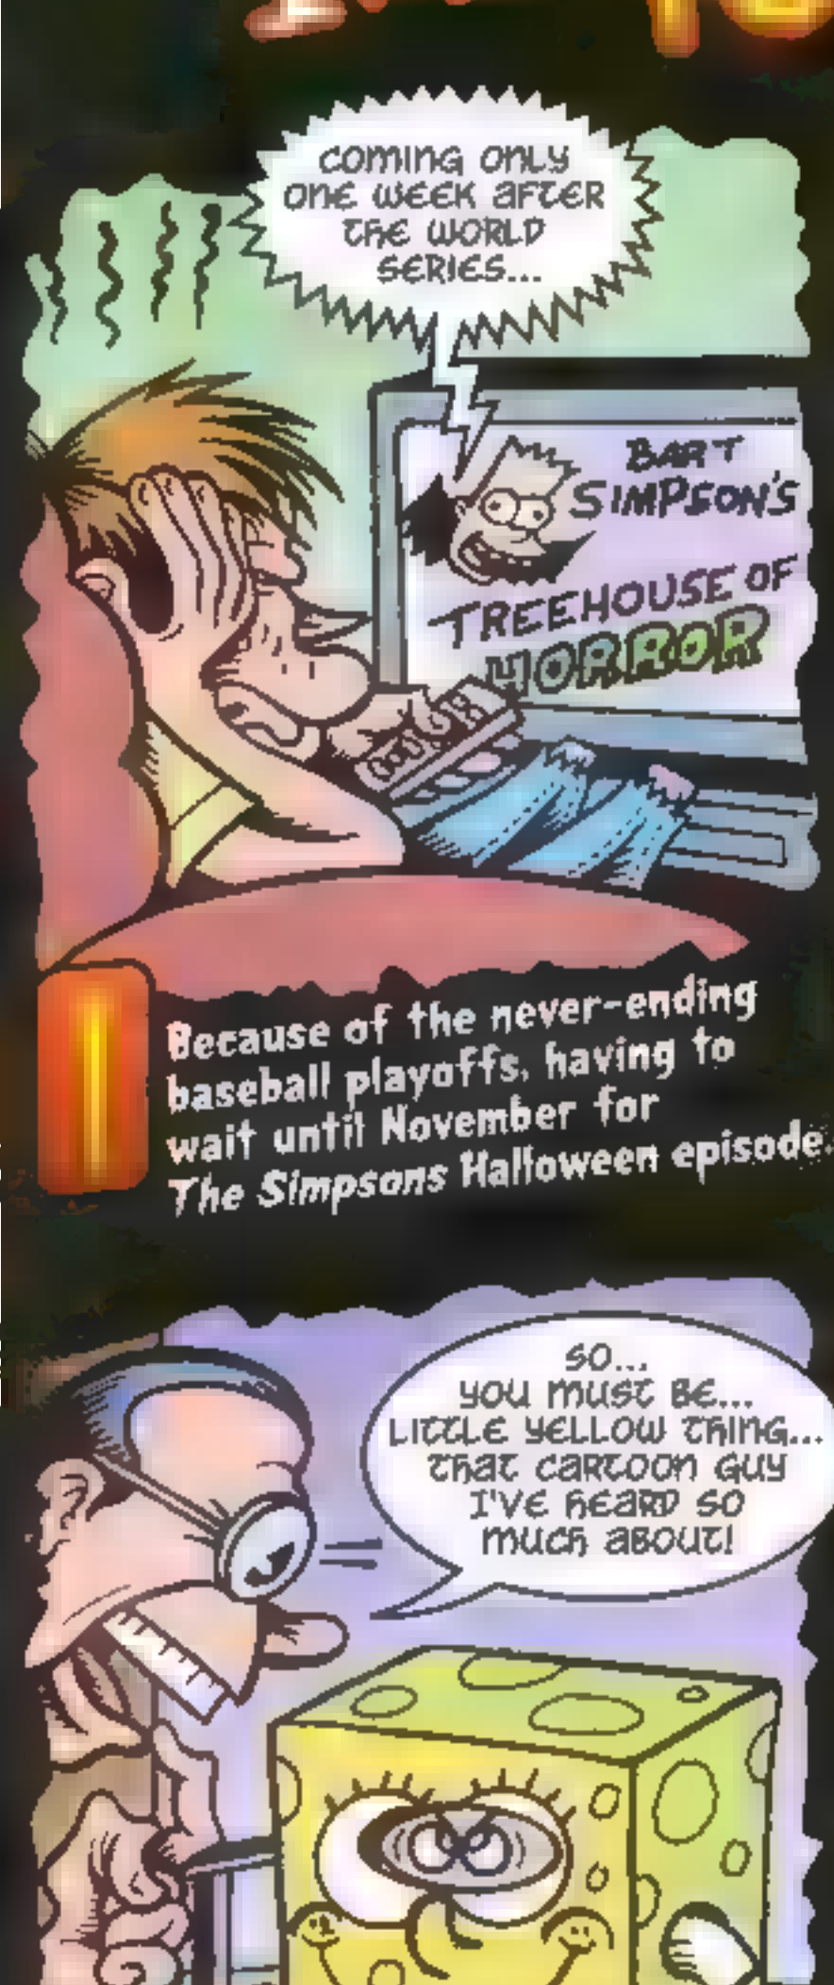
Candy! Costumes! Parties! Halloween must be the greatest holiday of the year, right? Wrong! Halloween has a disguise all its own — underneath the mask of fun and frivolity, it's every bit as soul-crushing and annoying as Arbor Day! It's true! So don't fill on candy — make sure you leave some room

THE 18 WORST THINGS ABOUT

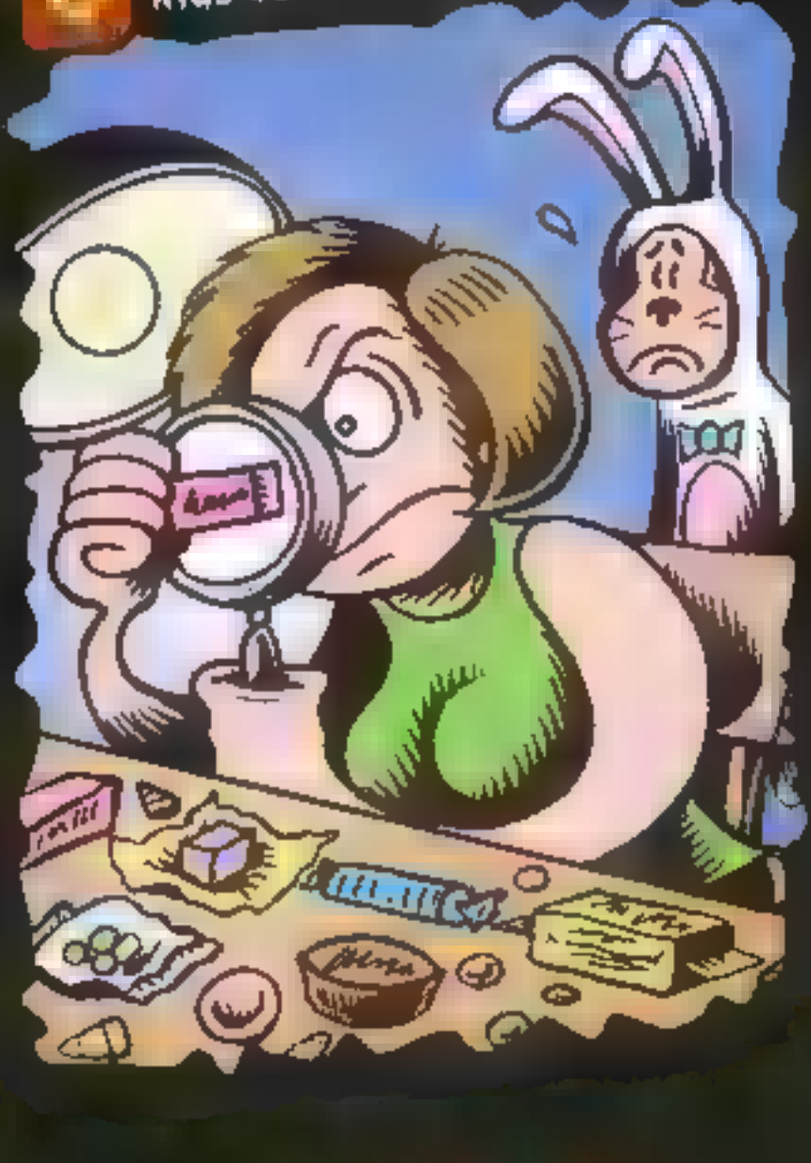


1 Because of the never-ending baseball playoffs, having to wait until November for The Simpsons Halloween episode.

2 Morons who think they're the wittiest people who ever lived by noting that a vampire costume "sucks."

3 Unseasonable heat that turns your makeup into something much scarier than you planned.

7 Out-of-touch adults who don't have a clue what character you're dressed as.



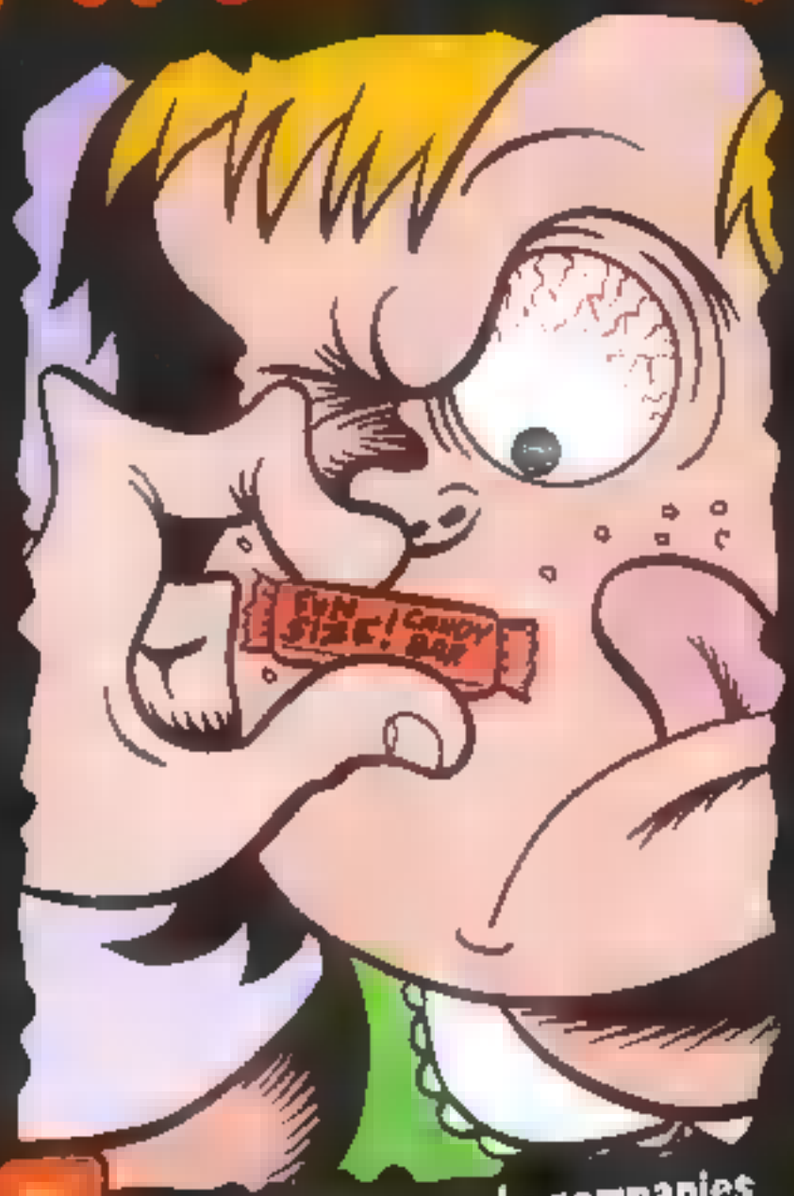
8 Overprotective parents who everything short of an x-ray search before they'll let their kids so much as unwrap a candy.

8 People who pretend to not be home, even though you know they are.

HALLOWEEN

4

Having to share your candy with a younger sibling who didn't do any of the work.

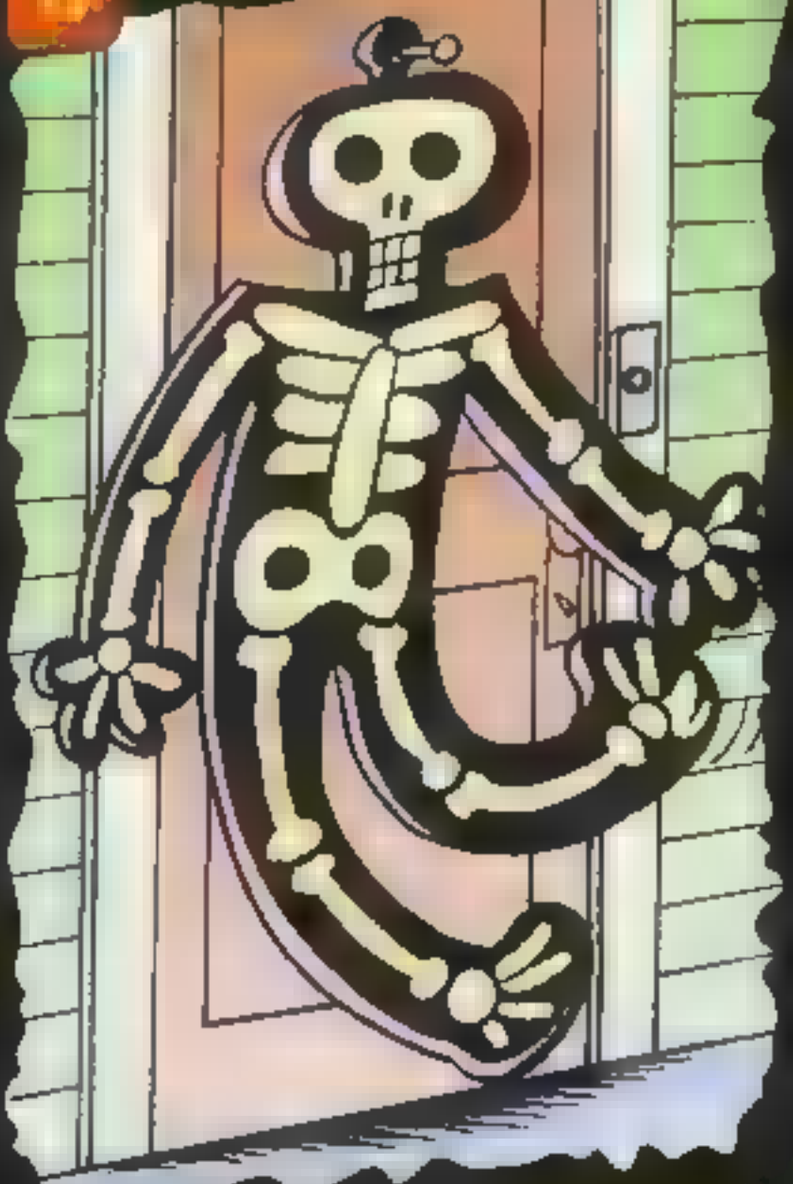


5

The fact that candy companies have the gall to create the phrase "Fun Size" when what they really mean is "Extremely Small Size."

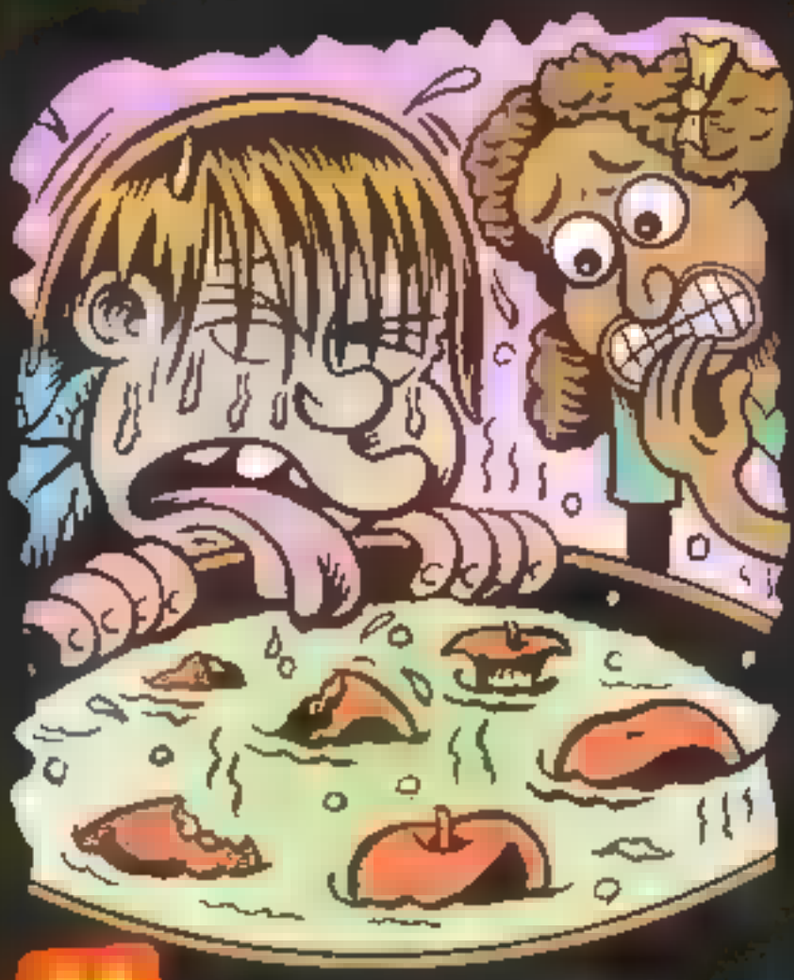
6

Glow-in-the-dark cardboard skeletons that don't even try to accurately recreate the ulna.



10

Finding an empty candy bowl on a porch, because the owners counted on the honor system and you got there second.

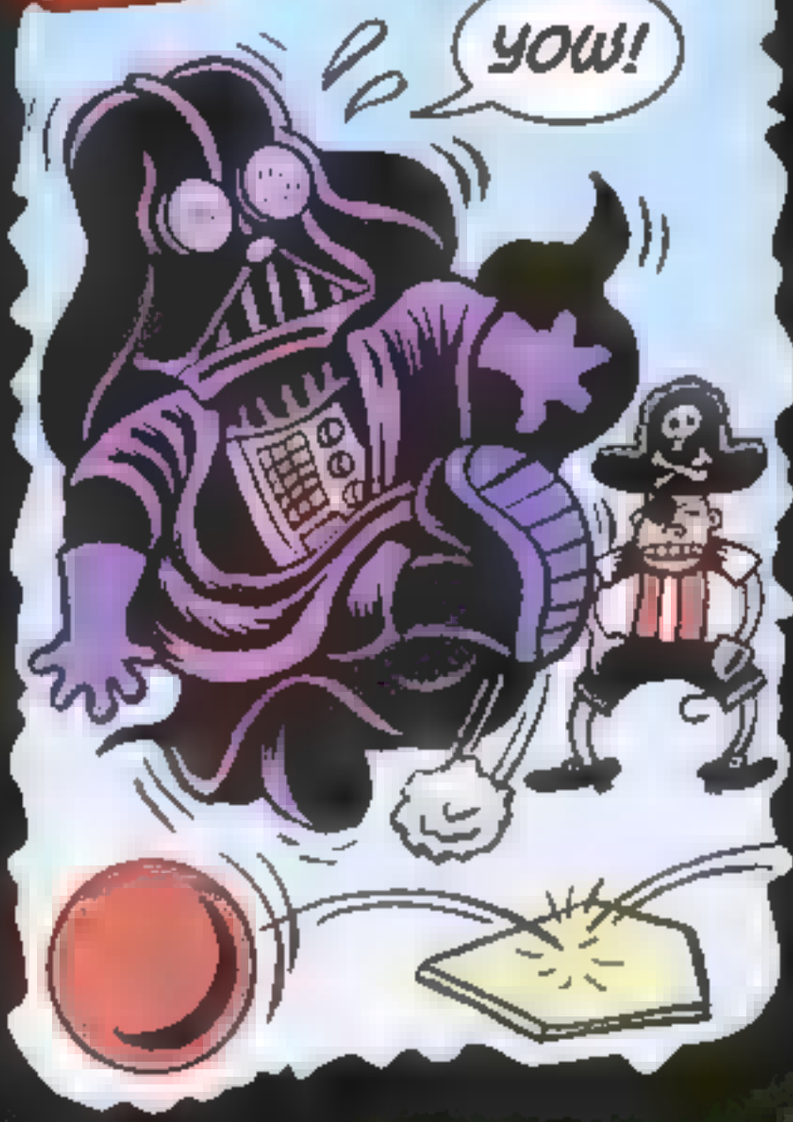


11

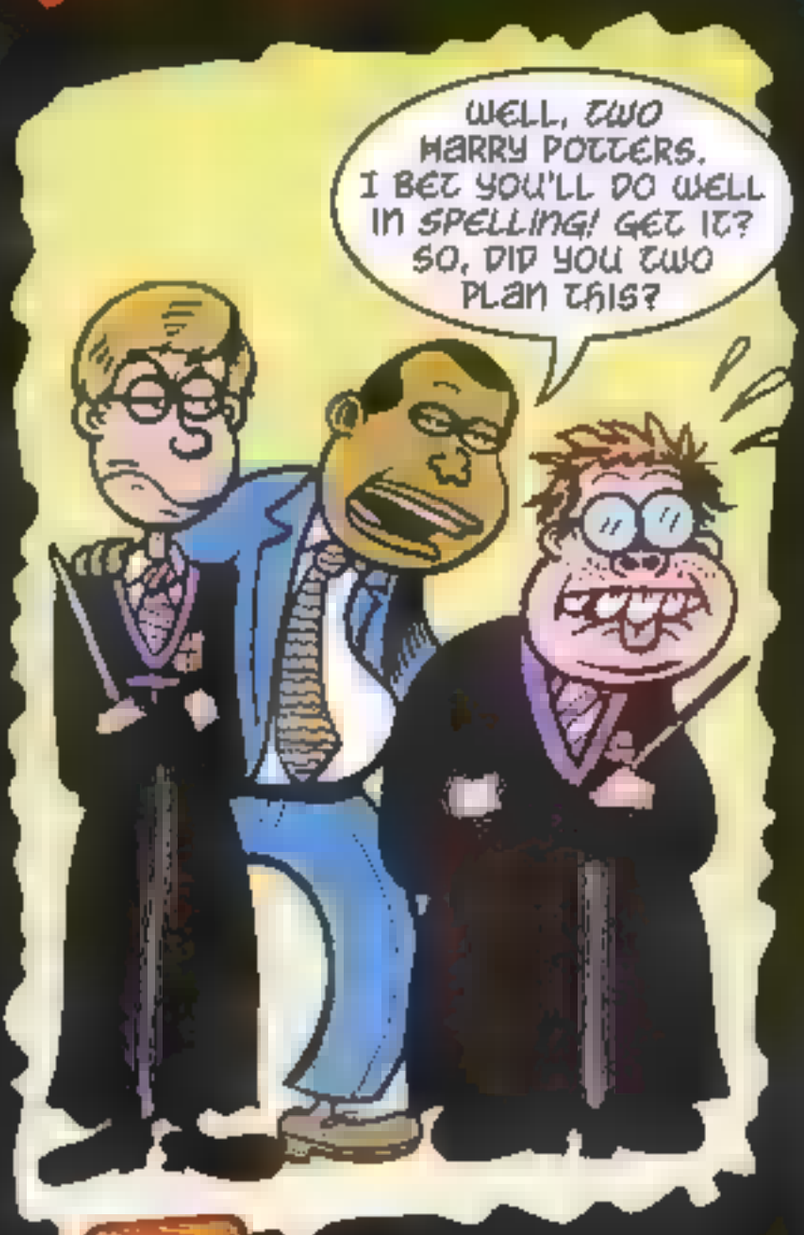
The humiliating — not to mention idiotic — party tradition of bobbing for apples. Just what we want to do — dunk our faces in a simmering broth of other kids' sweat, drool and pinkeye bacteria!

12

Trying to play kickball at recess in a bulky costume.



THE 18 WORST THINGS ABOUT HALLOWEEN



5 When you and the dorkiest kid in class have the same costume.

11 People who refer to Frankenstein's Monster as "Frankenstein." Frankenstein is the doctor, nimrods. The monster is the monster. Got that?

15 Teachers who work in a Halloween theme, but not something fun, like a party.

BURP!

It's Halloween again and that means it's time to make that all-important decision — which costume to spend fifty dollars on and wear only once! Will it be the classic vampire, a cow with a hilariously exposed udder, or will you just go without a mask and be the scariest one at the party anyway? To make it easier for you, MAD has dug up...

We at MAD generally find politicians to be oversized wieners. And, just like oversized wieners, politicians must be carefully packaged — including a catchy slogan! After all, it's much easier to come up with a stupid campaign slogan than an actual platform! But we'd like some truthful and upfront catchphrases for a change. Kind of like these…

HONEST CAMPAIGN WE'D LIKE

THE NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY!
NOW LIEBERMAN-FREE!

VOTE DEMOCRAT FOR A

AND IF YOU DON'T LIKE HER?
OF COURSE I WILL. FATE LED US HERE-IT WAS MEANT TO BE.
YEAH, SURE-SURE.
I HAVE A BETTER IDEA. HOW ABOUT WE SEND YOU UP, YOU SPEND A ROMANTIC HOUR OR TWO, AND TOMORROW, IF YOU STILL WANT HER, WE'LL COME BACK.

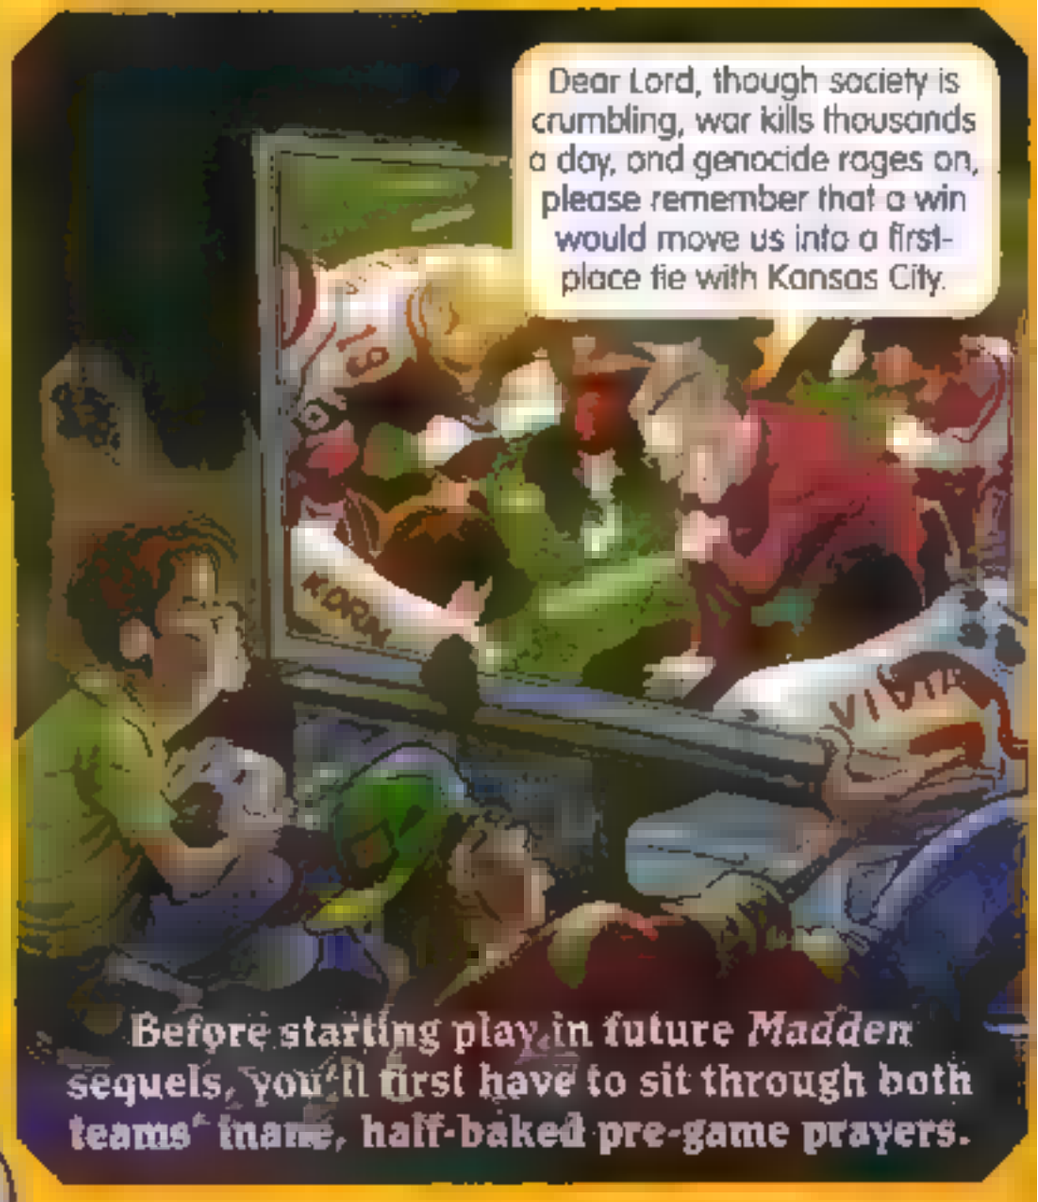
With holier-than-thou nimrod Senators like Rick Santorum and Joe Lieberman in power, the separation between church and state has never been more fragile. But with the upcoming release of a PC game based on the Left Behind books, gamers everywhere must recognize that a much more important barrier — that between church and game — is about to be breached like a cardboard levee! And here's what you can expect...

WHEN VIDEO GAMES BECOME RELIGIOUS

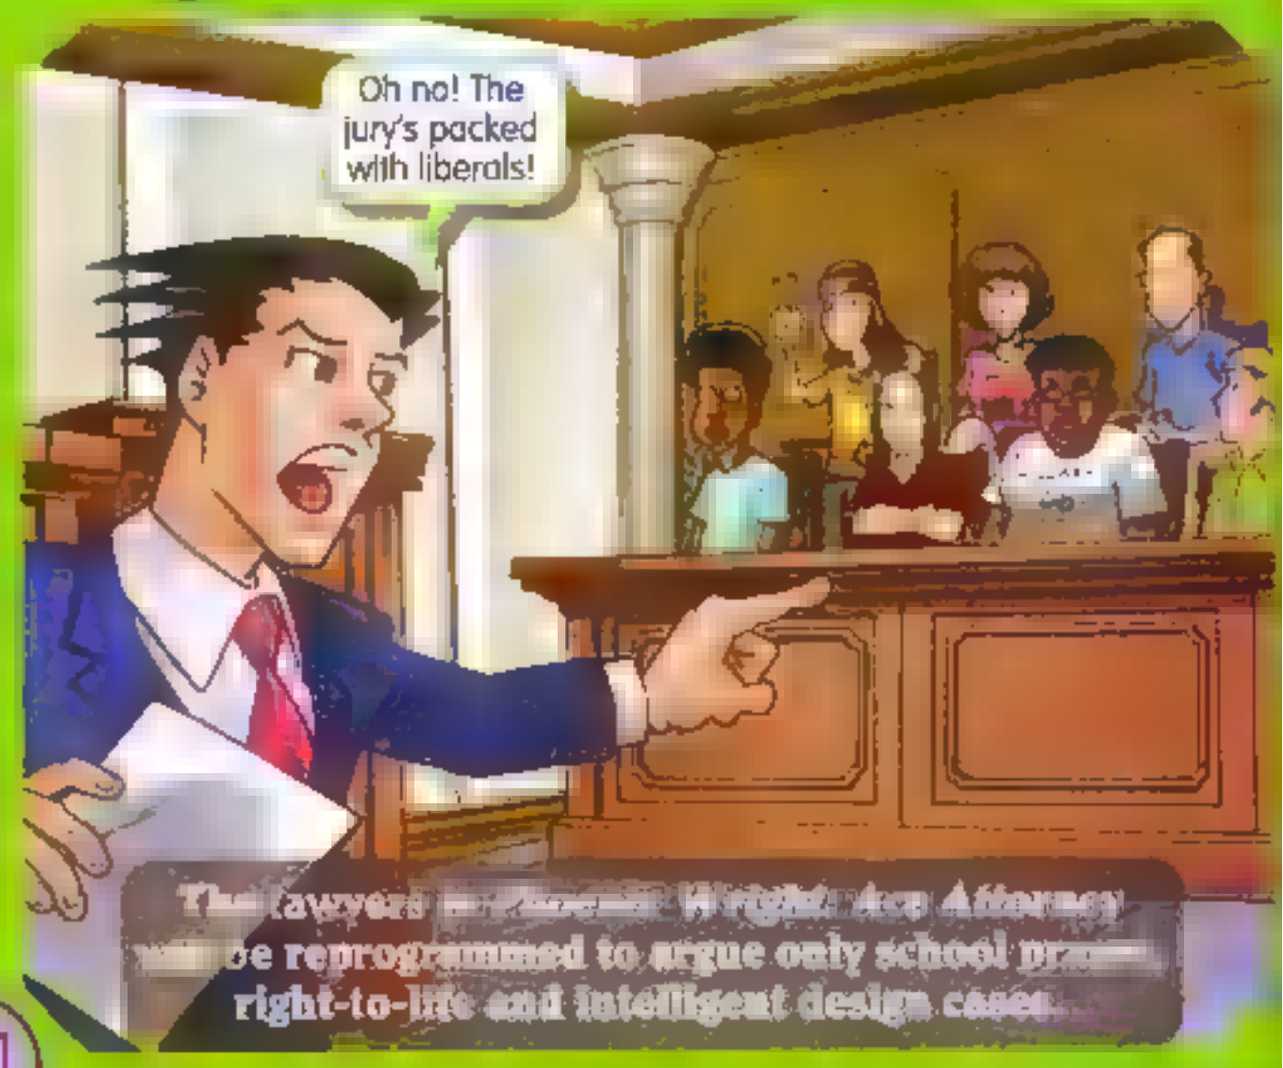


Dear Lord, though society is crumbling, war kills thousands a day, and genocide rages on, please remember that a win would move us into a first-place tie with Kansas City.
KORN
VIVA

Before starting play in future Madden sequels, you'll first have to sit through both teams' inane, half-baked pre-game prayers.

Let me get this straight: your sins include nine shootings, fourteen stabbings and thirty-two "bitch-slapped hoes" — all in the last 20 minutes?

Every time you maim, stab, or gun somebody down, you'll be whisked off to confessional to atone for your sins.



The lawyers [illegible] Wright Ace Attorney will be reprogrammed to argue only school prayer, right-to-life and intelligent design cases.

The new version of Dance Dance Revolution is limited to timeless Christian hymns, featuring such foot-stompers as The Lord's Prayer, To Thee My Heart I Offer and When I Survey The Wondrous Cross.

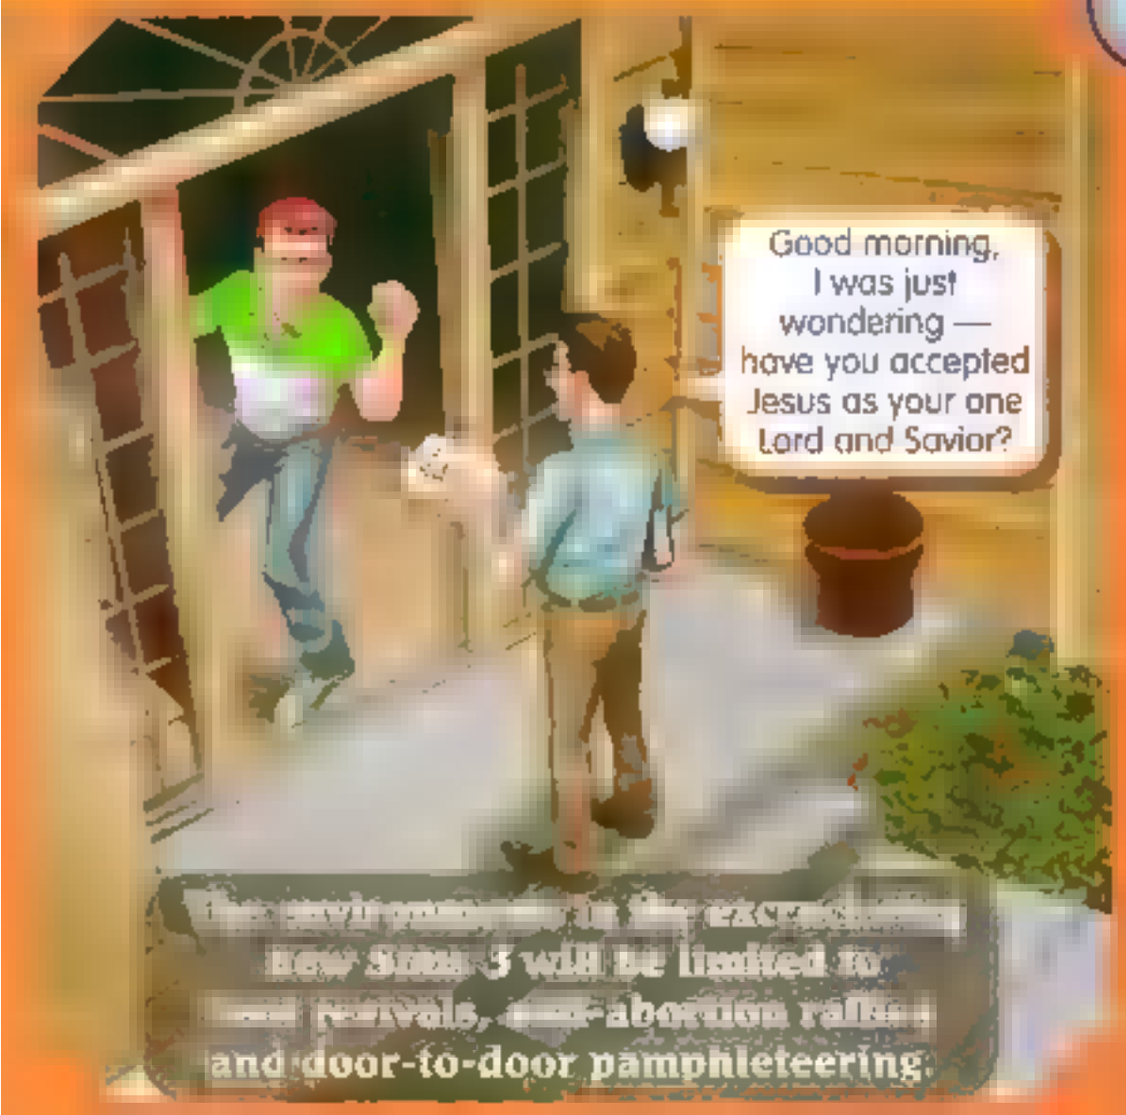
In most upcoming first-person shooters, instead of blasting your way out of a tight spot, your character now stops and asks himself, "What Would Jesus Do?"

The never-ending Pokemon series use the country's religious divisions to exploit niche markets even further.

In the sequels to Saint's Row and Contents Under Pressure, you can't write graffiti unless you're defacing "anti-Christian" ads, posters and billboards.



[illegible] will be limited to [illegible] revivals, [illegible]-abortion rallies and door-to-door pamphleteering.

Alternate "Christian" versions of Tetris [illegible] frustrating to play — and kind [illegible] creepy — with just one shape to work with.
